Whilst it is fully understood, that things change - events happen - and a player may subsequently become unavailable for any one of a number of reason, currently there appear to be too many players - withdrawing from matches at relatively short notice - with no reason being given.

Any player, who after confirming their availability as required - subsequently becomes unavailable for ANY reason - MUST at the earliest possible opportunity notify his selector. It is expected and would be courteous if - as several players indeed do - a basic reason for the withdrawal is given.
